4. REVIEW AND APPROVE PROPOSED MODIFICATIONS TO JUNE 30, 2023, SELF-FUNDED AND FLEX-FUNDED HEALTH PLAN CONTINGENCY RESERVE AMOUNTS (ACTION):

See pdf of Proposed Modifications to June 30, 2023, Self-Funded and Flex-Funded Health Plan Contingency Reserve Amounts presentation

Mike Clarke, Leady Actuary, Aon, presented the following items:

- Introduction—Basis for June 30, 2023, Contingency Reserve Modifications
- Background—HSB Contingency Reserve Policy 210
- Contingency Policy Objectives—Protecting Unusually High Claim Experience
- Contingency Policy—Health Plans Covered
- Contingency Policy—Reserve Calculation Methodology
- Reserves in SFHSS Financial Accounting
- Medical Self-Funded/Flex-Funded Health Plans
- Dental Self-Funded Active PPO Plan
- Recommendations for HSB Action

Commissioner Scott asked if having the stabilization or contingency reserves means SFHSS (San Francisco Health Service System) does not need to buy stop-loss insurance for self-funded and flex-funded plans. Mike Clarke said that Blue Shield’s HMO products, Access+ and Trio, require large claim pooling protection (essentially stop-loss insurance) through Blue Shield. SFHSS purchased this at the highest level allowed ($1 million annually per person) in 2013 when the Blue Shield HMO converted from fully insured to flex-funded. When reporting on Blue Shield HMO plan experience in March to the Health Service Board (HSB), large claim pooling reimbursements are documented in the experience exhibits. This is the only required stop-loss mechanism within the SFHSS self-funded and flex-funded health plan universe for external protection. Fully insured plans are insured for all costs. Historically, SFHSS does not purchase stop-loss insurance for self-funded plans like the PPO because the Contingency Reserve protects against adverse claim experience. One benefit of using a Contingency Reserve is avoiding additional costs, such as premium loads for carrier profitability and risk management associated with external stop-loss insurance. President Scott requested that the point about cost avoidance through the Contingency Reserve be emphasized in the upcoming HSB presentation on March 14. Without it, there would be increased costs for SFHSS flex-funded and self-insured products. It is crucial to highlight this feature during the review of background information to showcase its significance. Commissioner Scott said that the Contingency Reserve allows SFHSS to have trust protection confidence and reduces ongoing costs as a policy. While the impact on overall costs may be minor, it's important to emphasize this as a cost-saving measure during the presentation. Mike Clarke said having the Contingency Reserve is the most efficient, cost-effective way to protect against adverse claim experience.

Committee Chair Hao referred to the slide 14 statement that the proposed modifications to June 30, 2023, self-funded and flex-funded plan contingency reserves would reduce the total cost rates in 2025 plan year health plan rate cards by approximately $4.2 million—leading to reduced member and employer costs for the 2025 plan year. She asked if the $4.2 million is a result of the change in statistical confidence level from the currently adopted 99th percentile to the 95th percentile, and therefore, the amount needs to be embedded into the premium cost. Mike Clarke said that this is correct for medical calculations. We are advocating for retaining a contingency reserve for medical, modifying the statistical reserve from the 99th percentile to the 95th percentile, and setting the reserve to zero for the active dental PPO plan.

Commissioner Scott requested the footnote on slide 18, "To be reviewed with the HSB at the April 11 meeting." Commissioner Scott also said from an accounting perspective, it may seem like we are manipulating the books to achieve a desired outcome. Commissioner Scott said that is not the intention. He wondered about the broader best practices in large employer health plans, specifically outside SFHSS. He asked if these plans are more common to have a statistical confidence level of 97 or 95. Mike Clarke said the 95th percentile is the common practice for determining statistical significance and the standard for evaluating the confidence interval. The Aon lead actuary for state and local government practice also confirmed this as the predominant national approach. Mike Clarke did not advise deviating from this percentile in the Medical Contingency Reserve policy. Going below the 95th percentile could risk under-reserving for potential adverse claim experience. Commissioner Scott pointed out that the Committee is leveraging an accounting guideline as a policy to lower overall rates. He said this might raise questions about why we don't go even further, like the 91 or 87 percentiles. He suggested the Board establish a firm guardrail. While the Board has historically been conservative at the 99th percentile, moving back to the 95th percentile has notable implications. He said the Board must address this openly today and at the full Board meeting on March 14, sharing the Committee's approach considers fiduciary responsibility, industry practices, and broader employer trends. Mike Clarke said he would stress the 95th percentile confidence interval is the standard accepted level of statistical significance, and he would never recommend going below the 95th percentile for this Contingency Reserve Calculation. Committee Chair Hao agreed with establishing guardrails, and it's important to state them clearly and often.

Commissioner Scott noted on slide 23 that the dental plans' financial responsibility per member is capped through the plan's annual maximums and lifetime orthodontic benefits maximums. He asked what is the maximum number for active employees on the PPO plan. Mike Clarke said that for the active employee PPO plan, $2500 is the annual maximum per covered life. Commissioner Scott asked how much the maximum would be if every employee on that plan reached the yearly maximum. Mike Clarke said about 70,000 lives were covered in the dental plan, so approximately $175 million, whereas the current claim volume is around $40 million annually. Commissioner Scott said it would be good to know what would happen if fifty percent of the population reached the annual maximum. Mike Clarke said Delta Dental has the percentage of individuals who achieve an annual maximum each year, and it's been consistent. Committee Chair Hao wanted members and the public to understand the difference between the medical and dental recommendations. Mike Clarke said he can be ready to respond to questions about the difference.

Executive Director Yant asked if the recommendation to “suspend the HSB Contingency Reserve Policy 210” is accurate wording. She wondered if the recommendation should use the language “to amend” or “make an exception to” rather than “suspend.” Jennifer Donnellan, Deputy City Attorney, suggested using the term “amend” as the rules state that the Board has the power to amend. Mike Clarke restated the recommendation to read, “Amend the Contingency Reserve Policy 210 on a one-time basis for the determination for the June 30, 2023, dental self-funded active PPO plan Contingency Reserve amount.” Commissioner Scott asked Mike Clarke to clarify the language and send it to Executive Director Yant, the Board Secretary, and the Deputy City Attorney. Commissioner Scott requested that the Health Service Board Governance Committee meet to review and discuss Contingency Reserve Policy 210 with actuarial, legal, and leadership guidance and determine whether the policy needs to include the Self-Funded Active Dental PPO Plan. Commissioner Scott said the Committee will likely meet in the fall of 2024. Mike Clarke recommended the Governance Committee, and then the full HSB discuss removing the Self-Funded Active Dental PPO Plan from Contingency Reserve Policy 210. He said it would be ideal if changes could be reviewed, recommended, and adopted into the Health Service Board Terms of Reference document before the January 2025 Contingency Reserve presentation.

Commissioner Scott moved to approve the following three items:

1. Approve the modification of June 30, 2023, medical self-funded and flex-funded health plan contingency reserve amounts from those originally approved on January 11, 2024, to the 95th percentile confidence interval amounts captured on page 17 of this presentation document totaling $17,992,721.
2. Amend the HSB Contingency Reserve Policy 210 on a one-time basis for the dental self-funded active PPO plan.
3. Approve the setting of the June 30, 2023, contingency reserve amount for the dental self-funded active PPO plan to $0.

Committee Chair Hao seconded the motion.
